

Cultural Attitudes towards Technology and Communication

Cultural Attitudes towards Technology and Communication

*Proceedings of the Second International Conference on Cultural Attitudes towards Technology and Communication
Perth, Australia, 12-15 July 2000*

edited by

Fay Sudweeks

Murdoch University, Australia

Charles Ess

Drury University, USA

Second International Conference on
Cultural Attitudes towards Technology and Communication
Perth, Australia, 12-15 July 2000

International Committee

Co-Chairs

Charles Ess, Drury University, USA
Fay Sudweeks, Murdoch University, Australia

Vice-Chairs

Andrew Turk, Murdoch University, Australia
Mark Gibson, Murdoch University, Australia

Conference Manager

Moira Dawe, Murdoch University, Australia

Local Organising Committee

Matthew Allen, Curtin University of Technology
Steve Benson, Edith Cowan University
John Gammack, Murdoch University
Fiona MacMillan, Murdoch University
Richard Thomas, University of Western Australia
Kathryn Trees, Murdoch University

Program Committee

Tom Addison, Witswatersrand University, South Africa
Phil Agre, University of California San Diego, USA
Peng Hwa Ang, Nanyang Technical University, Singapore
Michael Dahan, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel
Donald Day, Towson University, USA
Ken Friedman, Norwegian School of Management, Norway
Satinder Gill, University of Helsinki, Finland/Stanford University, USA
Pat Hall, Open University, UK
Lorna Heaton, University of New Mexico, USA
Soraj Hongladarom, Chulalongkorn University, Thailand
Herbert Hrachovec, University of Vienna, Austria
Lawrie Hunter, Kochi University of Technology, Japan
Steve Jones, University of Illinois Chicago, USA
Willard McCarty, Kings College London, UK
Arun Kumar Tripathi, University of Dortmund, Germany
Diane Witmer, University of California Fullerton, USA

Sponsors

AI & Society Journal, Springer
American Bible Society Research Center for Scripture and Media
Association of Internet Researchers
Drury University, Missouri, USA
Korea Society, publisher of The US-Korea Review
McGraw-Hill Australia
Educational and Professional Publishing
Division of Business, Information Technology and Law, Murdoch University, Australia
Centre for Research in Culture and Communication, Murdoch University, Australia

ISBN 0-86905-747-2

PUBLISHED 2000

School of Information Technology
Murdoch University, Murdoch WA 6150 Australia
catac@it.murdoch.edu.au, www.it.murdoch.edu.au/~sudweeks/catac00

CONTENTS

Preface	v
Session 1 IT in Marginalised Communities	1
Outside the Net: Kiribati and the knowledge economy	3
Trevor H. B. Sofield, Australia
Challenges and opportunities in introducing information and communication technologies to the Kelabit community of North Central Borneo	27
Roger Harris, Poline Bala, Peter Songan and Elaine Khoo Guat Lien Malaysia
Barangays of IT: Filipinizing mediated communication and digital power	47
Peter Sy, Philippines
Rural secondary school teachers' attitudes towards information technology: A study in the Kelabit highlands of Bario, Borneo	57
Elaine Guat Lien Khoo, Tingang Trang, Pong Won Sia, Peter Songan, Roger Harris and Poline Bala, Malaysia
Session 2 Virtual Environments	75
Perceptions of virtual museums among French users:	77
An analysis of cultural differences on uses of the Arts on the Internet
Roxane Bernier, Canada and France
Disenfranchisement from the global technoculture:	105
Broadening the conceptual discourse on accessibility
Dineh Davis, USA
Symbiotic interface contingency: The reciprocal emergence of use and abuse	125
Steffen Walz, USA and Germany
Session 3 Cyberculture	145
Cyberpower: The culture and politics of cyberspace	147
Tim Jordan, United Kingdom
Ethnography and hermeneutics in cybercultural research:	163
Accessing IRC virtual communities
Jose L. Abdelnour Nocera, Venezuela
Mindscales and Internet mediated communication	175
John G. Gammack, Australia

Session 4 Culture and Information Systems	193
Information systems and organisational culture in a developing country: A critical theory perspective	195
Mark C. Williams and R. Sunil Gunatunge, Australia
Reducing the negative effects of power distance during asynchronous pre-meeting without using anonymity in Indonesian culture	209
Sjarif Abdat, Indonesia and Graham P. Pervan, Australia
Thai culture and communication of decision making processes in requirements engineering	217
Theerasak Thanasankit and Brian Corbitt, New Zealand
A world wide web of cultures or a 'world wide web' culture	243
Andrew Turk, Australia
The impact of cultural values on computer mediated group work	257
Nasrin Rahmati, Australia
Explaining community informatics success prospects: The autonomy/harmony model	275
Celia Romm and Wal Taylor, Australia
Session 5 Education and Policy	291
A consideration of culture in national IT and e-commerce plans	293
Steve Benson and Craig Standing, Australia
Dissemination on a global scale? Possibilities and problems in access to Internet-based academic journals	305
Sara Gwynn and Peter Thomas, United Kingdom
Addressing the moral poverty of computing higher education, including the Web	311
Mark Williams and Guy Duczynski, Australia
Session 6 Technology and Learning	325
A theoretical argumentation and evaluation of South African learners' orientation towards and perspectives on the empowering use of information: A calculated prediction of computerised learning for the marginalised	327
Louisa Postma, South Africa
A culture for computer literacy	341
Richard Thomas, University of Western Australia, Australia
Session 7 The Role of Media in Communication	347
How cultural differences affect the use of information and communication technology in Dutch-American mergers	349
Frits Grotenhuis, The Netherlands
Nerdy no more: A case study of early Wired (1993-96)	361
Ann Willis, Australia
Technological transformations of the public sphere: The role of CMC	373
David Holmes, Australia
Author addresses	385
Author index	387